and solve the mystery of

The Eviction Crisis

A National eviction moratorium was placed to prevent landlords from evicting during the pandemic there was a catch...

Tenants were required to submit a declaration form to inform their landlord that they lost income due to COVID-19...

Landlords werent required to tell tenants about this form

KCDT: The Eviction Crisis will be a mystery puzzle game focused on education about the housing crisis in America and what you can do about it.
Players will interview people, collect photos, evidence and discover the core issues behind the housing crisis

The end state is the player character finding out about this form and assisting the client in filling it out to stop them from being evicted.

The landlord is "unmasked" and called out on hiding this information from tenants. They are then forced to fix all the problems around the complex.

KCDT: The Eviction Crisis will be built in twine.
Using a hub to store evidence collected out in the apartment complex once players have gone down all story branches and found the required evidence the ending is unlocked. Players will also be given information about what they can do to help solve these issues in the real world.

Collect Evidence

Interview Neighbors

Confront the Culprits
